

Usability Testing Results

Open the profile of a potential co-owner who has the same budget as the user

Usability Findings

3 / 6 users indirectly succeeded in opening the profile of a potential co-owner who has the same goals

- 4 users did not notice the “My Needs” section on the bottom left-hand corner at first, creating slight confusion when trying to find a co-owner with the same budget.
- 1 user expected there to be an additional filter option.

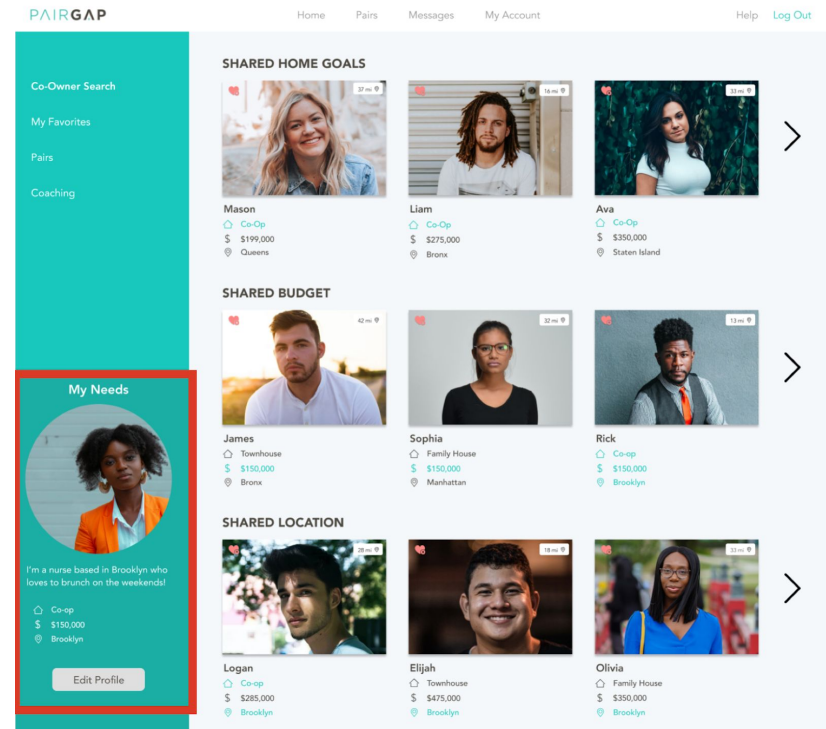

Analysis

Users appreciated having options to pick and choose from, but most did not find value from the “My Needs” section. Users predominately began browsing on their own personal budget and not our persona’s given budget.

Recommendation

Reconsider placement of the “My Needs” section, or do testing in a prototype that eliminates the “My Needs” section altogether to confirm if it is needed.

Score: Minor Issue

“My Needs” was updated to include a picture, and yet users still did not notice this section.

“I saw that section but I didn’t read it properly and didn’t take notice of it. It needs to be a little bit bigger and possibly bold.”
